

PrEP is a daily medicine that can reduce your chance of getting HIV. PrEP can be used for HIV prevention by men who have sex with men, men who have sex with women, women who have sex with men, and injection drug users.

What is pre-exposure prophylaxis PrEP?

When used with other safer sex practices (like condoms), PrEP can help protect you from getting HIV from an infected partner.

Talking to your doctor about PrEP

Before Your Visit

- Your doctor can help you to decide if PrEP would be a good option for you.
- Make a list of reasons why you think PrEP would be a good option for you, past illnesses or concerns, as well as a list of your current medications.
- Think about things that might make it easy or hard to take a daily medication.

During Your Visit

- Be clear. Tell your doctor that you are interested in PrEP.
- Do not be shy. Share with your doctor all the details about your life that could be important to your health.
- Don't worry about being judged.
- Ask questions to be sure that you understand what your doctor tells you.

After Your Visit

- Consider your options. Your doctor will give you a lot of information.
- Call your doctor or nurse if you have more questions.
- Schedule follow-up appointments with your doctor .
- If you feel comfortable, you may want to discuss this choice with your partner, family, or friends.
